Albert van Dalsumlaan, Amstelveen

The house is located in a street primarily consisting of family homes built around the early 1990s, characterized by a suburban, child-friendly atmosphere with plenty of greenery and playgrounds nearby. The focus of the area is entirely on comfortable family life. Residents benefit from the excellent local amenities, as the street is situated around the corner from the Westwijkplein, a major local shopping center with supermarkets and various shops for daily needs. The location also ensures good regional access, with easy public transport connections (including tram line 25) and quick drives
